

Support your fertility journey with critical illness insurance

Building a family doesn't always go as planned, and fertility treatments can take both an emotional and financial toll. If you're on this journey, know that you're not alone. Your critical illness insurance plan includes an infertility benefit designed to help ease some of that financial burden so you can focus on your path to parenthood.

This benefit is payable once per lifetime for an insured diagnosed with infertility. To be eligible, an insured must undergo one of the following fertility treatments recommended and performed by a physician.

Covered treatments

Tier 1 – Medications

$250 Benefit Medicines such as clomifene, tamoxifen, metformin, gonadotropins, gonadotropin-releasing hormone and dopamine agonists, artificial insemination (AI), and other medicines prescribed by a physician to improve fertility.

Tier 2 – Surgical procedures

$2,500 Benefit Surgical procedures such as fallopian tube surgery, endometriosis surgery, laparoscopic surgery, laparoscopic ovarian drilling, submucosal fibroid removal, epididymis blockage correction surgery, or similar surgical procedures as recommended by a physician to improve fertility.

Tier 3 – Assisted conception procedures

$7,500 Benefit Donor egg implantation; in vitro fertilization (IVF), including natural cycle IVF.
